W hotel Fei Ultra Lounge
A · N · D ·

Fei Ultra lounge is a bar lounge at W hotel In Guangzhou, China. It is a large, cubic, glass-walled space with 18 meters each of three sides, and we created two design concepts. The first is to gently cover the enormous wall with a film of warm light, which is new in the world. The color and flicker rate of the film, made up of countless glass fibers, can be controlled, and it constantly changes and sparkles. We succeeded in lighting up the whole wall with minimum lighting sources by a highly minute method of mixing the fiber and finishing gut. The second is multi-layers of horizontal floors and vertical walls into that light-enveloped space. This created segmented individual rooms of differing density and taste. It welcomes guests and allows them to secede from their ordinary lives. They can experience astonishing time and space very only here.

Farine
Neri&Hu Design and Research Office

Aromatic coffee beans, sumptuous bread scent—Farine on Wukang Road is not just restauranteur Franck Peco's new bakery in Shanghai, but also architects Neri&Hu's spatial interpretation of bakery as the progeny of coffee and bread. The design concept is encapsulated in where bread is made is a pure, white testing lab; where coffee is brewed, a textured palette of wood and raw metal reminiscent of the complex roasting process. The façade as a play of materials highlights and sometimes conceals the activities within, attracting visitors to double-take voyeuristically. Various scales and composition of aged bronze, reclaimed elm, textured glass, and even hints of colors also add to this layer of intrigue with their unique translucencies. What started as a pure lab space juxtaposing a raw, industrial coffee zone thus becomes a 2-in-1 shop where coffee and bread visually unite and compliment in taste.
